Temperatures and Coughs

A gentle reminder to all parents; normal body temperature is different for everyone and changes during the day. A high temperature is usually considered to be 38C or above. A new continuous cough: this means coughing a lot for more than an hour (the cough must be persistent).

Message from Headteacher!

Dear mums, dads & carers

Let me start by saying how heart-warming it is for me personally & for all of Stebon's staff & leaders to see so many smiling faces on the gates in the morning & children so clearly excited to be back at school. We love having you back. Every smile & every 'good morning' makes a real difference to us ... & that includes you grown-ups too! Covid-19 has not brought with it many advantages, but our closer & warmer relationship with you, parents, is certainly one.

This week, some of you have been frustrated by the difficulties you have had accessing tests. We completely understand your frustrations; it's hard to be told that you need to get a test & then for tests to be so difficult to book. We have passed on your concerns directly to the Department for Education & have been informed by government ministers that testing capacity will increase at the end of the month. Until then, I'm afraid, we need to expect long wait times. In the meantime, if you need to book a test, do keep trying. Most people get there in the end. We really appreciate your efforts.

We sent a quick survey to parents this week to find out how many of you would be interested in buying a digital thermometer from the school at a discounted rate. We are hoping to be able to sell these for £5. They're a good way of checking if your child has a fever - a temperature of 38C or above - & therefore whether they should be kept off school. Lots of you said you would be interested so we are going to order them & will be in touch with parents with how to buy one as soon as they arrive. Don't worry if you didn't manage to respond to the survey - we'll make sure to get a job-lot!

Have a good weekend everyone; look after yourselves & one another & we'll see you next week.

Kind Regards

Jeremy Iver (Headteacher)
